

Wood and Metal: A Creative Combination

With the variety of wood and metal mouldings available to you today, combining the two offers a very exciting frame design opportunity. Choosing wooden frames with complementary metal mouldings can create a contemporary or traditional look.

Texture and color are both important factors. Landscapes can look richer and brighter when the right color choice is used. Follow the texture of the art through to the frame design. Do you have a photographic print that will be enhanced by using its non-dominant color on both the metal and wood frame? The width of both mouldings is also important. Choose a thick outer moulding with a thin inner frame, or vice versa. Each design will provide a different ambience.

Picking and choosing colors of the artwork to become part of the frame design is the key. The type of wood and its brightness or dullness have a direct effect on the choice of the metal frame and its boldness. You can be bold or subtle. We will help you decide what accents and colors would look best with your artwork and home decor. We can create a one-of-a-kind frame just for you. Stop by and see what we can do. ■
