

Framing Focus

FRAMING PERSONAL TREASURES

Folksinger Bob Dylan once said, “Take care of all your memories.” And we are here to do just that for you—take care of your memories. Whether you have trinkets from a vacation or World War I memorabilia, we can help you customize a frame design suitable for housing your memories that also fits with your home decor. And, by saving these memories, you can relive those days.

Perhaps you’ve just returned from a fabulous vacation in Asia. You purchased beautiful terra cotta warriors and want to display them. We can make you a wonderful conversation piece using a floater frame. This eye-catching design will be a focal point in your home. A black floater frame creates a three-dimensional look and the fabric background adds richness and texture. By laying out these hand-made sculptures side by side, the illusion of a military format for the warriors is achieved. What a perfect vacation memory!

Or, maybe you were in your grandfather’s attic and found all his World War I memorabilia. Using a variety of special techniques, we can highlight your memories in a shadowbox. These sentimental objects can be framed using preservation methods, ensuring a long-lasting memory. We will use non-invasive techniques and keep all your objects in the same condition. Designing a beautiful shadowbox around your memories is one of our specialties.

Another idea is to frame baby clothes and special outfits. If your baby’s communion gown is a family heirloom, we can frame it in a shadowbox that will open and close, ready to use for future generations. Did your aunt knit a special hat and sweater set that your child has outgrown? Let us display it in a shadowbox for all to see her handiwork. Mother’s Day is just around the corner, and this is the perfect time to think about what certain outfits mom might hold dear and what memories you might want to preserve for her.

Creating memories is important, but just as important is keeping them and holding on to them forever. By displaying your treasures in a float frame or shadowbox, your memories will be preserved for generations to come. ■
